PAKISTAN LONG GRAIN IRRI6 PARBOILED RICE

Parboiled rice is rice that has been boiled in the husk. Parboiling makes rice easier to process, improves its nutritional profile, and changes its texture. Parboiling rice drives nutrients, especially thiamine, from the bran into the grain, so that parboiled rice is 80% nutritionally similar to brown rice. The starch in parboiled rice becomes gelatinized, making it harder and glassier than other rice.

PAKISTAN 385/D98 BASMATI RICE

Basmati rice is known as the "queen of scent" or "perfumed rice." This rice has been produced in the Himalayan foothills for thousands of years. Its perfumy, nut-like taste and fragrance are due to the grain being matured to reduce moisture content. Basmati rice is the most expensive rice in the world, loved by rulers and extolled by poets for hundreds of years.

Pakistan 385 Basmati Rice is another name for D98 Basmati Rice.
