AYURVEDA IS A SANSKRIT WORD THAT MEANS “THE SCIENCE OF LIFE.”

AYURVEDA

Ayurveda is an ancient and holistic healing system that aims to educate and empower individuals to maintain a healthy and balanced life. The word "Ayurveda" comes from the Sanskrit language and translates to "The Science of Life." Originating in India during the Vedic era, Ayurvedic medicine is one of the oldest healing practices in the world, with a history that spans thousands of years. It is rooted in the belief that true health and wellness arise from a balance between the mind, body, and spirit.

In Ayurveda, five fundamental elements, known as the Pancha Bhoota, are believed to influence the overall health of a person:

1. 1. Space (Akash): Provides space
2. 2. Air (Vayu): Provides shape and movement
3. 3. Fire (Agni): Provides energy
4. 4. Water (Jal): Provides cohesion
5. 5. Earth (Prithvi): Provides structure

These five elements combine to form three primary life energies, or doshas, in the human body:

- Vata dosha (Space and Air)
- Pitta dosha (Fire and Water)
- Kapha dosha (Water and Earth)

Each dosha governs specific bodily functions: Vata controls movement, Pitta regulates digestion and metabolism, and Kapha is responsible for the body's structure. The central concept of Ayurvedic medicine is to maintain a harmonious balance between these doshas, as they are considered the fundamental forces that shape all living beings in nature.

VATA DOSHA

Vata is composed of the elements of Space and Air and is responsible for all forms of movement and control within the body. It governs vital processes such as breathing, blinking, muscle and tissue movement, heart pulsation, and the movement of cytoplasm and cell membranes.

Vata can be disrupted by factors like dry and light foods, excessive raw food, travel, stress, grief, late-night activities, irregular routines, and overexercising.

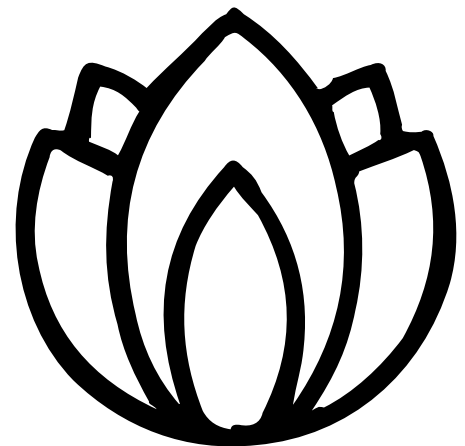

When Vata is imbalanced, it may lead to conditions such as anxiety, asthma, heart disease, skin problems, and rheumatoid arthritis.

Pitta governs digestion, metabolism, and certain hormones related to appetite. It is responsible for the digestion of food, vision, and cognitive processes.

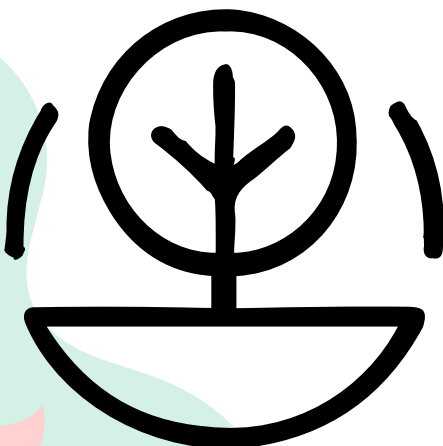

Disruptions to Pitta can occur from consuming sour or spicy foods and excessive sun exposure.

When Pitta is imbalanced, individuals may be more prone to conditions like heart disease, high blood pressure, and infections.

PITTA DOSHA

KAPHA DOSHA

Kapha is responsible for muscle growth, strength, stability, weight regulation, and immune system function. It provides lubrication and helps maintain the overall structure of the body.

Kapha can be disrupted by factors such as daytime sleeping, excessive consumption of sweet foods, and eating or drinking excessive salt or water.

When Kapha is out of balance, individuals are more likely to develop conditions like asthma, other respiratory disorders, cancer, diabetes, post-meal nausea, and obesity.
