Let's Bring the Change Together...

As it is known, petroleum products are used as raw materials in the production of plastic materials. This creates negative effects for both human health and environmental health. Plastic materials can take centuries to decompose in nature.

It takes approximately 4 weeks for paper straws to recycle in nature. For this reason, it causes almost no harm to the environment compared to plastic products. Paper Straws are much more suitable for health because they are exposed to much less chemical processing during the production stage than plastic straws.
