The True Essence of Directly Sourced from 200 Farmers for an Authentic Cinnamon Experience.

Behind each of our products, there is a story of 200 farming families in Jambi who nurture their ancestral heritage. We work hand-in-hand with them to produce cinnamon in the most authentic way—traditionally processed without the slightest touch of synthetic chemicals. The result is not merely a spice, but a guarantee of quality, purity, and an unparalleled authentic taste from the land of Jambi

Cinnamon Korentji

Korintje Cinnamon (Cinnamomum burmannii) is an Indonesian native cinnamon variety, predominantly cultivated in Sumatra and Sulawesi. Known for its robust aroma and spicier flavor compared to Ceylon cinnamon, it is widely used in culinary, beverage, and pharmaceutical industries. Historically, Korintje cinnamon has been a vital trade commodity since the maritime kingdoms of Nusantara, gaining global prominence during the 15th–17th century spice trade..

Today, Korintje remains a cornerstone of Indonesia's spice exports, processed through traditional methods: mature trees (2–3 years old) are harvested, their bark stripped, sun-dried, and rolled into natural quills or ground into powder. It thrives in global markets for baking, savory dishes, and herbal remedies, though its higher coumarin content (compared to Ceylon) necessitates moderation. Major importers include the U.S., Middle East, and Europe, where it's valued for affordability and versatility.
